The action of the play takes place over one night, in a pub, in the North of England starting at opening time and concluding at closing time.

There will be one interval of 20 minutes.

Director's Notes

The play we present tonight is another example of the acute powers of observation of the clever playwright, Jim Cartwright. In one evening we are invited to share in the lives of a landlord and landlady of a pub in the North of England, and a variety of their customers. As in real life, everyone has a tale to tell and things are not always as they would appear!

Hopefully, my hard working cast of "two" will create laughter, empathy, shock and a few tears throughout the many roles that they portray. My thanks also go to the backstage crew for their constructive help and advice in putting on this challenging play.

In the 'bar within a bar', we hope that you, the audience, will feel able to join in the spirit of the evening, should you be approached and that you will enjoy an evening to remember.
